CK21 is an engineering and environmental consultancy offering a range of services in all aspects of civil and structural engineering to meet client needs.

Our approach is one of pro-activity and speed of response ensuring that we are an integral member of the design team.

We consider sound engineering and environmentally sustainable solutions to be the cornerstone of our support to Partners and Clients whilst helping to achieve their goals and aspirations.

We recognise that through our project planning and design management we can influence the conservation of natural resources, minimise waste pollution and encourage recycling opportunities in compliance with relevant environmental legislation.

To support our approach the Partnership has established and regularly monitors achievement of business targets and goals.

To ensure we consistently provide the highest and most cost effective level of project related services to our clients the Partnership operate within a documented Business Management System. Through ongoing training, appraisal and communication, staff are encouraged to adopt good project practices and continually seek ways to improve our business processes.

Within a framework of compliance with the International standards ISO 9001 and ISO 14001 the CK21 Business Management System has been developed to maximise effective project delivery to our Clients. This framework involves full consultation on a regular basis with all members of staff.

This statement will be kept up to date by periodical reviews (at least annually) and will take account of any new legislation, business developments and staff consultation.
